Oberammergau 2010

THE WORLD-RENOWNED PASSION PLAY takes place every ten years in the Alpine village of Oberammergau, nestled in a valley and surrounded by breathtaking vistas. Frescos of biblical themes painted on the walls of many of the houses enhance the quaintness of the village. As you leisurely stroll through the town you will see many fine examples of woodcarving and fresco painting—centuries old crafts that have been passed on in Oberammergau from generation to generation.

In the year 1633 Oberammergau was in the grip of the Black Plague. The inhabitants took an oath that they would stage a performance of the suffering of Jesus Christ every ten years if their village would be spared from the plague. The epidemic abated just short of the village and in thanksgiving the inhabitants fulfilled their oath by performing the first passion play in 1634.

For hundreds of years, in spite of dangers and threats, the village of Oberammergau kept the solemn promise. With determined faithfulness to this tradition the amateur actors, who are all residents of the village, are about to represent again the life and suffering of Christ in fulfillment of their ancestors' vow. Pilgrims from all over the world will be inspired by the never-to-be forgotten Passion Play as a testimony of religious faith.

So that you can share in this historic event, GARLIN TRAVEL has made available a selection of 5 tour itineraries all of which feature a guaranteed performance of the historic Oberammergau Passion Play.
